From cool living to cool temperatures

Last weekend, I had two amazing experiences. They both stand out in my mind because I realized that I'm leaving soon, and I can't believe my time here passed so quickly. It's this panicky feeling of running out of time and trying to fit in as many memories as possible. That's what I did this weekend.

Friday afternoon, Jan Waddell and I hitched a ride with the Christian Women's Fellowship to cover their Christmas Drop on Carlson Island for the Hourglass. By the time we arrived, after an exhilarating ride, I was soaking wet, following the volunteers down the island to help carry supplies and begin covering this event. What an amazing experience. Over and over again, I remind myself how blessed I am. Not many people have the opportunity to travel to another country and learn so much about another culture. Whenever I try and describe the experiences I've had to friends back in Iowa. They are amazed, but I know they don't understand. How could they? I have wonderful memories, attending the opening ceremony of the Nitijela over the summer, eating lunch with President Note and his wife, learning how to dance at the YYWC Christmas Exchange, going over to Ebeye with my sister Autumn one hot summer day and somehow getting lost trying to find a store and having the best afternoon ever.

I did say I had two amazing experiences. Over the past few weeks, my mom, older sister and I have been taking scuba diving lessons. We finally got our certification on Friday evening, and our instructor, Maryellen, took us out on a boat Sunday morning. We went up to North Loi and saw the most amazing shipwreck; it just appeared like a vision. I felt like time had stopped underwater, and I had all the time in the world to explore this ship, covered in coral and sea anemones with schools of fish swimming in and out of every crevice. I decided then and there I'm going to take an underwater photography course so I can photograph shipwrecks, because they are truly amazing. Our second dive was equally beautiful as we visited a coral pinnacle off of Little Bustard and I saw my first shark. But in my mind, nothing will equal that first glimpse of the shipwreck as we approached underwater, and it was all clear and then the water ahead of us became dark as the ship mystically appeared. It was the most amazing experience ever.

I've had more amazing experiences since my parents were assigned here than anyone deserves. I know as I head back to the blistery cold of Iowa for the last four months of my undergraduate career that I have grown as a person. A lot has changed for me, and I know it is due to my experiences here. The world after college was always a frightening thought for me. Will I get accepted to grad school? What do I do if I don't? Will I get a job? I used to be frightened of these thoughts, terrified that I would make a mistake. But for some reason they no longer frighten me. I know I'll end up where I'm meant to be. I think that's why my dad received this assignment, and we all traveled out here. It's been an important step in our lives, and I'll always look back on my experiences on Kwajalein and my friendships knowing that they will always be a part of me.

So once again I say farewell and thank everyone for making my experiences here memories that I will cherish for a lifetime. I know I won't forget anytime soon, since I have an awesome flip flop tan to remind me of my adventures while I was here.

Corrections

In the Jan. 13 article "Mayor, officials commit to working together," Judge Billy Samson, not The Rev. Lawson Matauto, administered the oath of office to Ebeye Mayor Johnny Lamari. In his speech, Lamari said he would make sure that the local government pays their debts to the Marshall Islands Social Security Administration, rather than that MISSA pay their debts.

Also, one of the incumbent councilman is Raney Bolkeim.

In the Jan. 6 article, "4-H plans student programs, needs volunteers," the Community Youth Activities assistant director is Heather Schantz.

The Hourglass regrets the errors.

Note takes oath in first inauguration

By Jan Waddell
Reporter

The Republic of the Marshall Islands held its first official presidential inauguration with the swearing in of President Kessai H. Note Monday.

Note won his second term in office on Nov. 17 by members from the Nitijela with a vote of 20-9, said Thomas Praster, U.S. Embassy Majuro deputy chief of Missions.

There, in the Nitijela chambers at the capitol on Majuro, Note took the oath of office in front of the Nitijela and representatives from Taiwan, Japan, Philippines, China, Australia, Israel and United States, Praster said.

The Uliga Youth Choir opened the ceremony singing the RMI National anthem. After the opening prayer, the Honorable Daniel N. Cadra, RMI Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, swore in the newly elected cabinet members.

Then, with First Lady Mary Note holding the Bible, Note was sworn into office by Cadra.

In his inaugural address, Note pledged to uphold the trust of his office and thanked his colleagues for electing him.

He outlined some of the goals he expects to accomplish in his administration such as increased education for the Marshallese people and boosting the Marshall Islands economy.

Note promised to improve the infrastructure of his government and country and "build a future for the Marshall Islands."

He also touched on the importance of education, health, transportation and communication in the Marshall Islands.

Note said the improved Compact agreement between the United States and the RMI offered a much better financial package for the Kwajalein landowners and security for the Marshallese people.

After the presidential address several letters of congratulations from various countries were read.

A special choir of Kili, Bikini and Ejit members sang two songs and then the Nitijela chaplain, the Rev. Jude Samson, gave the closing blessing.

Note and the First Lady greeted the members of the attending delegation in a receiving line and then refreshments were offered outside the capitol.

The presidential motorcade then made the short trip to the Outrigger Hotel for an inaugural lunch.

Kwajalein residents serve overseas in war

By Jim Bennett
Editor

An explosion rocked a traffic tunnel in Baghdad Sept. 8, injuring former Kwajalein resident Staff Sgt. Larry Bowman.

Bowman, a Kwajalein police officer for "around five years," PCSed in 2001 to become an adjunct professor of police management at the University of Great Falls in Montana, said Bowman's friend KPD Lt. Gail Fabrizio. Bowman also returned to his Army National Guard unit, the 143rd Military Police Detachment.

The unit was activated, and Bowman went to war, finding himself on Sept. 8, injured in a humvee with shrapnel in his face and head, according to the personnel action report.

"After the blast Staff Sgt. Bowman refused medical care until after additional forces had arrived to take over security," the report stated.

For the action, Bowman received the Purple Heart medal.

But Bowman is just one of a handful of residents and former residents serving in the region.

Capt. Michael Russell led an infantry company with the 1st Armored Division from Kuwait to Baghdad, changing command in the Iraqi capital in June to attend the space officer's course. He came to Kwajalein in August with his wife and four children to become the RTS Space Operations officer.

"It's good to be home, but I left my guys behind," he said, adding he remains in touch. "But they'll be coming home soon."

Throughout the march to Baghdad, Russell said his unit suffered no casualties. They have since had a few soldiers wounded, but thankfully no fatalities.

"It was worthy of the cause. The news doesn't show it, but the people of Iraq were so happy that we were there," Russell said, describing repatriation ceremonies reminiscent of the liberation of occupied France in World War II. The majority of the ceremonies, he added, came in the south, where Shiite muslims celebrated the downfall of Saddam Hussein.

"It was incredible," Russell said.

Former commander, Col. Curtis L. Wrenn Jr., had planned for a summer 2004 retirement, but instead, now serves as the deputy plans chief for U.S. Central Command.

In October, he visited with retired Gen. Thomas Schwartz.

"In a five-minute conversation he made me realize it's not about money and, if I was happy and felt like I was contributing, then stay with the team," Wrenn wrote in an e-mail. "Well, I went home and talked to the wife, and like any good Army wife, she said, 'If you want to stay I will support you.' Well I withdrew my retirement orders the first of November, and my reward was two weeks later I was told to pack my bags. I was deploying."

"Before I came to Kwaj, I taught joint and combined operations and international security studies at the Air War College," Wrenn wrote. "This assignment gives me a chance to see if I fit the axiom, 'Those that can do, and those that can't teach.'"

And a couple of residents are on their way to Iraq.

Robert Magnuson came to Kwajalein this past year as a DoD civilian, after serving as an active duty JAG officer, most recently in the U.S. Space and Missile Defense Command headquarters at Huntsville. Magnuson's resume carried a specialty in contract law, making him especially appealing to USAKA.

But that specialty is needed in Iraq, too, with the influx of businesses beginning reconstruction efforts, and Magnuson, who had remained a reservist with a New Orleans-based unit, received orders as a special detailee.

"There is a need for contract attorneys," Magnuson said. "I knew it was probably going to come down some time. I was hoping it would be later rather than sooner."

Because his family has moved so frequently in the past years, Magnuson asked USAKA to allow his family to remain on-island while he served his year-long tour, and the command granted the request.

The attorney left this week, "Hoping the year goes quickly," he said.
